It was evident to the sailor that the poor woman's mind had gone back to the dreadful days of the sack of Panama. He was right then; it was she.

"The boy—save him, save him!" she cried suddenly with astonishing vigor. The sound of her own voice seemed to recall her to herself. She stopped; her eyes lost their wild glare and fixed themselves upon the man above her, his own face in the shadow as hers was in the light.

"Is it Panama?" she asked. "Those screams—the shots!" she turned her head toward the city—"the flames! Is it Panama?"

"Nay," answered the one-eyed fiercely. "This twenty-five years since then and more, Yonder city is La Guayra. This is the coast of Venezuela."

"Oh—the doomed town, I remember—now, I stabbed myself rather than—place the ladders. Who art thou, sailor?"

"Benjamin Hornigold!" cried the man fiercely, bending his face to hers.

"Hornigold!" she cried.

For a second the woman stared at him. Then, recognizing him, she screamed horribly, raising herself upon her arm.

"Hornigold!" she cried. "What have you done with the child?"

"I left him at Cuchillo, outside the walls," answered the man.

"And the cross?"

"On his breast. The captain—"

"The marriage lines were there. You betrayed me. May God's curse—nay, I do. For Christ's sake—I forgive—Francisco, Francisco!"

She fell back gasping on the sand. He tore the incubus coil from her face. In a vain effort to hold back death's hand for another second Hornigold snatched a spirit flask from his belt and strove to force a drop between her lips. It was too late. She was dead. He knew the signs too well. He price. At present I know but one thing."

"That is"—

"There lies your mother," answered the buccaneer slowly, pointing to the white figure on the sand.

"My mother!" cried Alvarado, stepping forward and looking down upon the upturned face, with its closely cut white hair, showing beautiful in the moonlight. "God rest her soul! She hath a lovely face and died in defense of her honor like the gentlewoman she should be. My mother! How know you this?"

"In the sack of Panama a woman gave me a male child, and for money I agreed to take it and leave it in a safe and secluded spot outside the city walls. I carried it at the hazard of my life as far as Cuchillo and there left it."

"But how know you that the child you left is I?"

"Around the baby's neck the mother, ere she gave him to me, placed this curious cross you wear. 'Tis of such cunning workmanship that there is naught like it under the sun that ever I have seen. I know it even in the faint light when my eyes fell upon it. I left the child with a peasant woman to take him where I had been directed. I believed him safe. On leaving Panama that village lay in our backward path. We burned it down. I saw the baby again. Because I had been well paid I saved him from instant death at the hands of the buccaneers, who would have tossed him in the air on the point of their spears. I shoved the crucifix, which would have tempted them because it was silver, underneath the dress and left the child. He was alive when we departed."

"And the day after," cried Alvarado, "De Lara's troops came through that village and found me still wearing that cross! My mother! Loving God, can it be? But my father?"

"What shall I have if I tell you?"

"Riches, wealth, all. Set us free and—"

"Not now. I cannot now. Wait."

"At least, Donna Mercedes."

"Man, 'twould be my life that would pay. But I'll keep careful watch over her. I have yet some influence with the captain. Tomorrow I'll find a way to free you. You must do the rest."

"Mercedes," said Alvarado, "heardst thou all?"

"But little," answered the girl.

"That lady is believed to have been my mother!"

"Gentle or simple," said the girl, "she died in defense of her honor, like the noblest, the best. This for thee, good sister," she whispered, bending down and kissing the pale forehead. "And may I do the like when my time comes. Thou shouldst be proud of her, my Alvarado," she said, looking up at him.

"See!" she cried suddenly as the resemblance, which was indeed strong between them, struck her. "Thou hast her face. Her white hair was once golden like thine. He tells the truth. Oh, sir, have pity upon us!"

A messenger came staggering forward then across the woods.

"Master Hornigold," he cried.

CONFEDERATE REUNION

Remnant of Southern Army Meeting at Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., June 13.—Louisville has made all preparations for entertaining the United Confederate Veterans during their reunion which will be held Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. Already the veterans have begun to arrive, and by Wednesday noon over fifty special trains will have emptied into Louisville some 30,000 veterans and their families from a distance. This number will be augmented by about 50,000 visitors from territory adjoining Louisville on Friday, the day of the parade, when it is expected that 8,000 gray-coated old soldiers will march. For the first time since the civil war many of these veterans will have the first sight of their battlefields, which were recently returned by the war department to the states whence they came.

General Stephen D. Lee and General Joseph Wheeler are already in the city.

Mitchell's Trial Begins.

Portland, Ore., June 13.—Skirmishing preliminary to the real battle between the United States government and United States Senator John H. Mitchell commenced with arguments upon the demurrer interposed by the defense to the indictment charging Senator Mitchell with having while United States senator, accepted money for influencing the United States general land department to expedite certain land claims which the indictment contends were fraudulent. After hearing the oral arguments, both sides have ventured even to attempt what President Roosevelt has accomplished. Continuing, the Post says: "No president since Lincoln has so impressed

TREATY OF PEACE

Formal Negotiations Toward This End Will Soon Be in Progress.

THE FINAL DETAILS

Of the Movement Inaugurated So Auspiciously by President Roosevelt Being Completed.

It Remains But to Name the Plenipotentiaries and Select Place of Meeting.

Washington, June 13.—Negotiations between Washington and St. Petersburg and between Washington and Tokyo are in progress and the final arrangements for the peace conference in its essential details, are likely to be a question of only a few days. As soon as the arrangements are completed definitely an armistice will be agreed upon and the armies in Manchuria will lower their bayonets pending the formal negotiations of a permanent treaty of peace.

MARQUIS HIROBUMI ITO.

It can be said that the place of the meeting of the plenipotentiaries of the two governments has not been finally selected. In the arrangements of this detail and others of like importance, President Roosevelt is acting as an intermediary between Russia and Japan. Russia, through Ambassador Cassini, has indicated her preference for one place for the holding of the peace conference; and Japan, through Minister Takahira, has suggested another. It is intimated officially that an agreement on the place of holding the conference may be determined on in a few days, but no suggestion, except of a negative character, of the choice of either of the belligerents, is obtainable. It is known that neither Washington nor the battlefield of Manchuria was the selection of either Russia or Japan. Further than that information of a definite nature was withheld. There is no suggestion that in the question of the selection of the location of the peace conference President Roosevelt shall act as an arbiter. It is expected that the two governments principally interested will have no serious difficulty in reaching an agreement on that point as Russia already has indicated informally that Japan's selection of a place probably would be satisfactory to Emperor Nicholas.

During the past two weeks the president's efforts have been directed toward bringing the belligerents into amicable contact on the basis of a mutual agreement to consider terms of peace. This he has finally accomplished. It remains now for the belligerent powers to name their plenipotentiaries and agree upon a time and place for them to meet to discuss terms and to negotiate a treaty of peace. These details are now under consideration with a bright prospect that such minor differences as may exist will be resolved within a few days.

It is understood in a high official quarter here that Marquis Ito, Baron Komura, minister for foreign affairs, and General Yamagata, chief of staff, are the three under consideration by the emperor of Japan as plenipotentiaries and that the inclination of the belligerents is that each select two plenipotentiaries. Mr. Mifflin, ambassador of Russia at Paris, who negotiated and signed the celebrated treaty of San Stefano following the war between Russia and Turkey, is understood to have been tentatively selected by Baron Rosen, though this lacks official confirmation.

John Dyer of Hammond, candidate for the Republican nomination for treasurer of state, was here today en route to Madison to attend the Grand Army encampment. Dyer is one of the youngest veterans in the country, and he never misses an encampment. He was defeated for the nomination for treasurer with the field that was mowed down by Nat U. Hill of Bloomington, but he is counting on winning this time without a great deal of trouble. He is now making an active canvass.

Dangerous Flood Fears. Louisiana, Mo., June 13.—The crest of the Mississippi river flood has reached here and passed the danger line. The waves of the flood are beating hard on the protecting levees and in places the water has crept over and is filling the lowlands. Warnings were given to lowland farmers in time for them to seek high ground.

Government's Timber Business. Washington, June 13.—Reports to the forestry bureau concerning the cutting of timber on forest reserves show that up to date 31,000,000 feet of lumber, 50,000 cords of wood, 513,000 railroad ties and 36,000 posts have been disposed of under the supervision of bureau officials.

GLOWING TRIBUTES

Roosevelt's Triumph Excites the Admiration of Britons.

London, June 13.—Glowing tributes to President Roosevelt's successful diplomacy occupy the foremost place in the London newspapers. The Morning Post in an editorial characterizes it as both a personal and national triumph and declares that no other man would have ventured even to attempt what President Roosevelt has accomplished. Continuing, the Post says: "No president since Lincoln has so impressed himself on the imagination and respect of Europe and Asia. His success implies acknowledgment of the moral position America holds in international politics."

The Daily Chronicle calls it the splendid beginning of the president's determination to pursue a "world policy," while the Daily Telegraph, again insisting on the absolute sincerity of Russia in the negotiations, says: "The pessimists fail to take into account the position of President Roosevelt. He is the last man in the world to allow himself to be made a fool of, and any affront put upon him by either belligerent would be most wanton and inexplicable foolishness."

A Fitting Tribute.

London, June 13.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Times says: It is no exaggeration to say that President Roosevelt is the most popular man in Russia today. The president's rare insight, aided by the skill and tact of his ambassador, Mr. Meyer, enabled him to gauge the proper moment at which to offer advice which the initiator of The Hague peace conference could not refuse."

GROWING RED HOT

Republican Contest for Indianapolis Majority in Full Blast.

Indianapolis, June 13.—The race for the Republican nomination for mayor is growing red hot. Ex-Mayor Bookwalter has arranged to visit every precinct in the city in an automobile, and during the next three weeks will attempt to talk to several thousand voters. His opponent, Frank D. Stalnaker, is not such a seasoned campaigner, but many meetings are being planned for him. The fact that Stalnaker is the business man's candidate was emphasized today when it was announced that a series of business men's meetings are being arranged in his interest. His managers claim that 90 per cent of the Republican business men are for him and against Bookwalter. The latter has rallied to his support a score of vigorous young spellbinders, who were turned loose last night. Bookwalter expects to speak at noon at the factories and three or four times each evening. The Stalnaker men are polling nearly every precinct in the city, as they fear there will be hundreds of Bookwalter's Democratic friends who will attempt to vote for him. The poll in several south side precincts was surprising, as it showed them to be practically solid for Bookwalter, regardless of party, but the Stalnaker men say his north side vote will overwhelm Bookwalter.

The Republican leaders here have not yet solved the problem of how to prevent Democrats from voting at the primaries June 30. The primary election law provides a severe penalty for illegal voting, but it is difficult to enforce the law. Stalnaker's managers are arranging to challenge hundreds of voters who are known to be Democrats, but the latter may vote by signing an affidavit that they affiliated with the party in the preceding election and will vote for the ticket next November. It is charged that several Democratic leaders are doing all they can on the quiet for Bookwalter, believing him to be weaker than Stalnaker. It is generally conceded now that Bookwalter will get about three-fourths of the colored vote, which is between 6,000 and 7,000. The betting is more lively than usual in a race for the nomination. Stalnaker is a favorite, the odds being ten to nine in his favor.

Charles Seifert, editor of a Republican paper at Washington, Ind., who was here today, said that the Second district will come to the front in great form in behalf of the candidacy of John C. Billheimer for auditor of state. Billheimer resides at Washington, although he is present deputy auditor. He has been Second district chairman for several years and has served his party so faithfully that his friends say he is entitled to recognition. Seifert says there is no one in the Second district against him. He also counts on a big vote for Billheimer from throughout the entire southern half of the state. Within the next few weeks the Second district Republicans will hold a love-feast, he said, in behalf of Billheimer's candidacy.

John Dyer of Hammond, candidate for the Republican nomination for treasurer of state, was here today en route to Madison to attend the Grand Army encampment. Dyer is one of the youngest veterans in the country, and he never misses an encampment. He was defeated for the nomination for treasurer with the field that was mowed down by Nat U. Hill of Bloomington, but he is counting on winning this time without a great deal of trouble. He is now making an active canvass.

IT IS COMING OUT

Story of Russia's Naval Blunders Gradually Being Told.

BLUNDER ON BLUNDER

From Vladivostok Come the Stories of Survivors Carrying a Heart-rending Tale of Incompetency.

After Japs Put Flagship Out There Was Absolutely No Hint of Direction.

Vladivostok, June 13.—A series of interviews which have been given out by naval officers who survived the battle of the sea of Japan has developed a most sensational story of the causes of the Russian disaster first of all and the complete demoralization which followed the sinking of the flagship Knyaz Souvaroff and the wounding of Admiral Rojestvensky. It is explained that not a single officer of the fleet knew the commander-in-chief's plans. The admirals in command of divisions knew no more than the sub-lieutenants and had to rely entirely on the signals of the flagship. Admiral Nebogoff, upon whom the command devolved, had seen Rojestvensky only once after the juncture of their squadrons, and then only for fifteen minutes.

All the stories of extensive target practice in Madagascar it seems were false. During the entire voyage there was practically no training in gunnery worthy of the name, and the big gun practice was confined to three shots per vessel. Ugly stories are told of the happenings at Madagascar. Some of the crews certainly were untrained in gunnery and, exhausted by the eight months' voyage under trying moral and physical conditions, were no match for the veteran Japanese, whose marksmanship was wonderful. The Japanese concentrated their fire on one ship until she was placed out of action, and then on another, thus successively sinking the Oslabya, Alexander III., and Knyaz Souvaroff.

Some ships developed deplorable structural defects. The Oslabya sank without having a single hole below the water line. Heavy seas entered the vessel above the water line, and the watertight compartments, which were changed several times during the voyage, did not stand the strain they had been calculated to stand, and burst, flooding and keeling the vessel over until she turned turtle.

Lack of homogeneity among the ships made it impossible to maneuver in harmony. The Vladimir Monomach, Admiral Oushakoff and Admiral Senjavin had to lag behind, on this account becoming easy victims. Finally, the ammunition was exhausted after the first day's fight.

Even the very morning of the battle, while the buzzing of the wireless instruments on the Russian ships showed that the Japanese scouts were communicating their dispositions to Admiral Togo, Admiral Rojestvensky continued his careless maneuvering, and when the Japanese actually appeared the Russians were caught in an impossible formation and were attacked on three fronts. Rojestvensky's position was cramped and his transports were badly placed and caused confusion. While the Japanese were raining projectiles even from machine guns on the Russian ships, the latter were huddled together, blanketing each other's fire. Only the leaders of the columns could bring their guns to bear, and even those the untrained gunners fired wildly.

To render matters worse, the mines and floating torpedoes strewn in the paths of the Russian divisions added to the confusion. The Borodino, Admiral Nakhimoff and Navarin fell victims to these obstructions.

It is a heartrending narrative that Russia and the world should know. The sailors and officers were not altogether to blame. The main fault lies elsewhere. There were many heroes among the Russians. Captain Berk of the Oslabya committed suicide on her bridge as the ship sank rather than save himself. There were thousands of other heroes whose names the world will never know.

To Perpetuate Seifert's Memory. Chattanooga, Tenn., June 13.—At a meeting here it was decided that a handsome monument should be erected in honor of the late Senator General Henry V. Seifert. The place for its location will be decided later. The monument probably will cost in the neighborhood of $25,000, and subscriptions will be solicited from all parts of the country in order to make it a national shrine.

This Incident Cited.

Washington, June 13.—Secretary Hitchcock reported to the president, but before they could present their case the president informed them that he had gone over the matter thoroughly with the secretary, that he agreed entirely with him and that he considered the matter closed. The delegation then withdrew.

Philadelphia, June 13.—The director of public safety has prohibited a church from holding a raffle. In an effort to raise funds the Roman Catholic Church of the Ascension intended raffling a house valued at $2,500. A complaint was made to the public safety department on the ground that a raffle was a gambling proposition, and the Rev. D. J. Brougham, rector of the church, was informed that the raffle could not take place.

A Poem for Today

MY OWN FOUR WALLS

By Thomas Carlyle

THOMAS CARLYLE, Scotch-English historian, essayist, critic, etc., was born in Ecclefechan, Dumfriesshire, Dec. 4, 1795, and died in Chelsea, London, Feb. 4, 1881. After a short time spent in teaching, Carlyle embraced the literary profession, in which he won honor after overcoming fierce criticism. His first works of mark were his translations from the German ("Through his England discovered Germany"), and these were followed by the great histories, essays, etc., that have made for their author an imperishable name. His metrical productions were few.

THE storm and night is on the waste,
Wild through the wind the herdsman calls,
As fast on willing nag I haste
Home to my own four walls.

Black, tossing clouds, with scarce a glimmer,
Envelop earth like sevenfold pallis;
But wifekin watches, coffee-not doth simmer,
Home in my own four walls.

A home and wife I, too, have got,
A hearth to blaze, what'er befalls;
What needs a man that I have not
Within my own four walls?

King George has palaces of pride,
And armed grooms must ward those halls;
With one stout bolt I safe abide
Within my own four walls.

Not all his men may sever this;
It yields to friends' and monarchs' calls;
My whiststone house my castle is,
I have my own four walls.

When fools or knaves do make a rout
With gismen, dinners, balls, cabals,
I turn my back and shut them out,
These are my own four walls.

The moorland house, though rude it be,
May stand the brunt when prouder falls;
'Twill screen my wife, my books, and me,
All in my own four walls.

WAS IN SEYMOUR.

Gordon Gauld the Bedford Overdraft
Man, Here Last Wednesday.

Gordon R. Gauld, the druggist who left Bedford last Tuesday night, having overdrawn on the Citizen's National bank, was seen in Seymour on Wednesday by W. C. Walsh, master mechanic of the Southern Indiana Railway, who had no conversation with him, not knowing at the time that anything was wrong. Since he left Bedford on Tuesday and was in Seymour on Wednesday, it is indicated that he had no definite destination when he left Bedford. He left that place at 11 o'clock Tuesday night on the Monon and must have gone through Indianapolis without stopping longer than to change cars. An hour's ride Wednesday morning would have taken him direct to Seymour from Bedford. He must surely have been on his way home to Bedford and then were up and been unable to face the people there. However, the checks that he issued have been paid by the bank, funds having been placed there to his credit for that purpose. There is now no reason why Mr. Gauld should not return home, as there now appears to be no charge against him except that he has borrowed beyond his ability to pay.

Cairo the Gambler's Paradise.

Modern Cairo must be a sort of gambler's paradise, judging from some facts which I recently had from a friend who has been investigating the subject. In one of the principal streets near Mohammed Ali square a gentleman who knows the town well pointed out over twenty first floors over the shops with the names of bars upon them, every one of which he knew to be a gambling hell, and a police official admitted to the investigator that the town was full of such places. The police do not seem to be at fault. They raid the places from time to time, but the offenders, nearly all foreigners and mostly Greeks, are protected by their consuls and let off lightly and return to the business the next day. I should guess that the business is chiefly carried on for foreigners as well as by them. There is a sort of cosmopolitanism about gambling, and its votaries are drawn from all corners of the earth by the scent of the game. But this seems to be one respect in which Egypt has not improved under British influence.—London Truth.

A Queen's Cold Cure.

"You have a cold, eh?" said the physician. "Well, suppose I give you the same prescription that Queen Elizabeth used?"
He took down an ancient folio.
"Dr. William Bulleyn's prescription for a cold, which Queen Elizabeth used all her life, was this," he said.
"Takes nutmegs, the root called dornike, which the apothecaries have; setwall, gatangall, mastike, long pepper, the bark of pomegranate, of melon, of sage, hazel, marjoram, dill, spikenard, wood of aloes, cubebe, cardamon (called graynes of paradise), lavender, pennyroyal, the bone of a hart's heart grated, cut and stamped, and beat your spices grossly in a mortar. Put in ambergris and musk, of each half a dram. Distill this in a simple aqua vitae, made with strong ale, in a serpentine. To tell the virtue of this water against cold, phlegme, dropsy, heaviness of mind, coming of melancholy, I cannot well at the present, for it is too great."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

The Exchequer.

In past times it was the custom for the king's justiciar and his subordinates to make up the royal accounts twice a year, at Easter and Michaelmas, on a table which was the most striking object in the chamber in which they assembled. This table was covered with dark russet cloth divided into squares, which gave it a checker-board, chessboard-like appearance, and in the columns and spaces the accounts rendered by the sheriffs and great landowners who attended for that purpose, were entered and reckoned up. It was the checkerboard cloth, so conspicuous throughout the proceedings, that gave rise to the name exchequer, just as the stars painted on the ceiling of another historic room originated the name "star chamber."—London Globe.

Discretion the Better Part.

"I'm perfectly convinced," said the ambitious young man, "that I can write the greatest novel of the period."
"Why don't you go ahead and do it then?"
"Oh, I wouldn't think of such a thing. I am happy now in my belief on the subject. Where's the good of my risking disappointment?"

His Compliment.

First Artist—Well, old man, how is business? Second Artist—Oh, splendid! Got a commission this morning from a millionaire. Wants his wife and children painted very badly. First Artist—Well, old man, you're the very man to do that for him.

CONSIDER THIS OUTING To Famous Seashore Resorts, In Planning Your Vacation.

By far the most attractive trip for health and pleasure the coming vacation season is that offered by the Seashore excursion Thursday, August 17th, over Pennsylvania Lines to Atlantic City, Cape May and seven other famous summer havens on the Atlantic Coast. The fast through train over Pennsylvania Lines takes passengers in a few hours out of the heat and humidity of summer to the cool breezes of old ocean. This mid-August excursion occurs in the season for rest when it is most convenient to leave business. Excursionists have the added pleasure of seeing Atlantic City when it is in full tide of the fashionable season. The greatest representative gatherings ever known at any resort are seen at Atlantic City. As many as 50,000 people at one time promenade the famous boardwalk. The fashionable bathing houses present an unparalleled scene—fully 100,000 bathers in the sea and on the beach. Special low fares will be in effect for this Seashore excursion. Further information will be freely given by local ticket agents of the Pennsylvania Lines.

SEEING AMERICA.

In certain respects the excursions to the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition, Portland, Oregon, via Pennsylvania Lines, beginning May 22nd and continuing through the summer, offer advantages never before presented to Exposition visitors. The trip to the Oregon Exposition, in addition to the attractiveness of the extensive exhibits, includes the journey through the scenic wonderland of the Rocky Mountains and the Cascade Range, and what American has not looked forward from the days of the geography class in school to the time when these great sights should be seen in reality? The time was never so favorable as now. The trip may be made less expensive than ever. For only a slight difference in fare tourists may extend their trip to San Francisco and Los Angeles. The return trip may be made over a different route, enabling travelers to view much more of the west. For full particulars, fares, dates of special excursions to Portland on account of conventions, through time and passenger service apply to ticket agent of Pennsylvania Lines.

THE governor's interpretation of the railroad commission law is that it forbids the issuing of a pass to anyone that is not a bona fide employee of the railroad company, and there is hardly any public officer that would care to be classified in that list.

THE Columbus Herald roasts the carnival attractions that exhibited there last week and says that everybody was glad when it was over. The Herald says that on the whole the carnival was a failure and lays the blame on the Robinson Amusement Company.

GIVE a man the proper environment and he will be happy in the growing theory in the world today. At the same time nobody knows that many a man who if he should happen to pass St. Peter at the gates and if he were handed a harp would swear that the harp was out of tune, and that he never did like music, anyway.

EVERYBODY concedes that one cause of the Japanese victory is the marksmanship of the Japanese gunners. This marksmanship came from practice, but practice costs money, and we suppose that while this practice was going on there were malcontents who were howling about the extravagance of the government in permitting such use of ammunition.

THE Odon citizen, who was horse-whipped by the wife of another prominent man of that place because of slanderous remarks he had made about her, is threatening to bring suit for damages against his mistreaters on the grounds that he did not originate, but merely repeated the story. It certainly is evident to all, though, that the circulator of a vile story is as bad as the one who originated it.

DIED.

HENDERSON.—Mrs. Hester Adaline Henderson, wife of James Henderson, died last night, June 12, at her home on West Bruce street at the age of thirty-seven years, four months and four days. The cause of her death was tuberculosis. She leaves a husband, three daughters and one son.

The funeral services will be conducted at the residence at 7:30 Wednesday morning by Rev. C. E. Severinghaus. The remains will be taken to Russell Chapel, about eighteen miles south of this place, for burial.

Evangel Missionary Meeting.

The Evangel Missionary Society of the Presbyterian church met last evening at the home of Mrs. Frank Abele on east Second St. Mrs. Abele sang a beautiful solo during the meeting. A committee was appointed to arrange for a missionary tea in July. Mrs. Galbraith was appointed chairman of the committee.

HEIR TO MILLIONS.

J. C. Emerich Supposed to be a Resident of Seymour.

In 1816 John N. Emerich died leaving an estate in New York City, which is now valued at $80,000,000. He had come from Germany and was engaged in the seafaring business and was also a partner with John Jacob Astor in the fur trade. He left a will bequeathing his estate to the heirs of his two brothers. Owing to the fact that the two brothers did not harmonize, the two survivors were cut off and the heirs were not to enter into the estate until after the lapse of seventy-five years following the death of the millionaire. John Jacob Astor was named as trustee. The estate is said to comprise land between Rector street and Printing House square in New York and includes the Trinity church property, the Astor House and all that property along Broadway.

The heirs are now commencing to take concerted action to recover the estate and a J. C. Emerich, of Seymour, Ind., is spoken of in a paper of Bloomington, Ills., as an active heir. The paper further states that he has had lawyers engaged for months in meeting the trustees who control the property.

A man by the name of Geo. A. Emerich, of Chicago, has written repeatedly to W. P. Masters trying to find the whereabouts of J. C. Emerich. Mr. Masters has been unable to find that such a person has ever received mail from the post office at this place and no one has ever heard of anyone by that name.

Police Court.

Daniel E. Allen was arraigned this morning before Judge Congdon on the charge of stealing a bicycle from W. A. Carter and son and was bound over to the circuit court in the sum of $200, in default of which he was committed to jail to await the action of the grand jury.

Allen bought the bicycle several weeks ago from Carter on the installment plan, but never made any payments. He claims the wheel was stolen from him at the Columbus carnival last Friday, but it is thought he sold the wheel. A lady's ring which he had was identified by Mrs. Will Rudick as hers. He had been working for Mr. Rudick on the farm. A revolver belonging to a neighbor farmer was missing also, and he is known to have tried to buy some cartridges for it from the Union Hardware Co. Allen has been keeping company with a young lady near where he worked and several articles are missing from from her home. He contracted to purchase several other things including two buggies and a horse from Seymour firms, but had never took any of them. He claimed to be a brick contractor and made several attempts to secure some work here in Seymour, including some figuring he did on the contract for the new city building. He claimed to own a farm of 110 acres in Meade county Kentucky.

Stacks of Wall Paper

In all conceivable designs are here. If you knew how cheap artistic wall paper is at our store, you wouldn't let those rooms go another season with their old wall covering.

Freshen them up, it'll cost you but little, and means lots of comfort.

PLANTING MONEY

In your house in the shape of good, honest, thoroughly seasoned, and therefore damp-resisting, lumber, always pays in the long run. Less repairs, for one thing; fewer eyesores in the shape of warped, twisted and generally shrunk-out-of-shape windows and doors for another. Honest lumber awaits your call at this yard of

MEETS EVERY DEMAND.

The Investment Insurance Trust Bond issued by the National Life Insurance Co., of Vermont, combines all the desirable features of life and endowment insurance in one contract, and after three years, if deposits are discontinued for any reason, the holder of the Bond or Contract may choose to have

1. His insurance extended for a definite period; or
2. A paid-up bond participating in the profits of the company payable at the end of the time for which the contract was made; or
3. A guaranteed amount to be received by the purchaser in cash or surrender of the contract; or
4. A paid-up life policy, participating in the profits, payable at the death of the purchaser.

No other company writes so valuable a contract. Full details will be given if you call on

NO FEE TO FISH

In Michigan, the Mecca This Year of Indiana Tourists as in Years Past.

Positive information received from Michigan authorities states there is no truth whatever in a report that an annual fee of $25 or any other fee is to be imposed on non-resident fishermen in Michigan. A rumor of such a law having been passed in Michigan is stamped as also utterly without foundation.

The origin of this false report is traced to talk current last winter when a question was raised in legislative proceedings concerning the subject, but no action taken, legislators not deeming such a measure advisable. Nothing further has been done, and tourists from Indiana are assured that they need not forego their customary outing to Michigan resorts this summer on the score of being confronted by a tax collector, for there are none such to bar the way.

Judging from the many inquiries already received by W. W. Richardson, Assistant General Passenger Agent of the Pennsylvania Lines, Indianapolis, regarding Michigan resorts and the famous fishing, there will be more than the usual number of Indiana tourists enjoy their summer outing in those health and pleasure havens where either hay fever or fishing fees exist.
